NATIVE NATIONS STUDIO

OUR PURPOSE

The Native Nations Studio at EAPC is an interdisciplinary, team-based professional design practice focused on serving Indigenous communities through architecture, interiors, planning, engineering, fund-sourcing, and sustainability.

Rooted in place-based, human-centric planning and design, the Native Nations Studio stands strongly with Indigenous clients and communities - rural and urban - to promote greater self-awareness, cultural continuity, and advance sovereignty.

We are committed to weaving Indigenous world views and wisdom into the built environment through deep listening and mutual respect - boldly standing with Native Nations and courageously supporting their self-determination. By amplifying Indigenous voices, we reinforce the creation of lasting self-sufficiency and intergenerational strength.

Indigenous Social Economic Environmental Design (I-SEED)

At Native Nations Studio, we believe Indigenous clients and communities have the inherent right to live in socially, economically, and environmentally thriving places—deeply rooted in cultural heritage and the sacred lands we have called, and continue to call, home.

I-SEED Principles

- 1 Protect our culture, language, ceremonies, and thus, our inherent rights—across many generations of our continued existence.
- 2 Preserve and enhance systems for inclusion and representation, so our communities strongly embody who we are as Indigenous Peoples around the world.
- 3 Promote social cohesiveness and cultural continuity through discourse reflecting our range of values and social identities.
- 4 Seek and make community—driven decisions to grow our capacity to plan, design and build in a way that promotes self-sufficiency and robust, living systems of sovereignty.
- 5 Take care to be good and respectful relatives interconnected to all living things—seen and unseen/known and unknown—who are mindful stewards of our sacred Grandmother Earth.
